TALES FROM THE KNIGHTSIDE

he grounds had not been cared for in a number of years and a thick mixture of mud and leaves had affixed itself in the spaces beneath his cleats. He walked forward carefully, trying not to step anywhere close to a gravestone where a body might be buried.

"Halloween night is not a good time to walk over some dead guy's face," he whispered to himself, stepping over shards of broken pottery.

The way the moonlight played tricks on his eyes, he began to wonder if one of the bodies might be lying there under the topsoil, waiting for him to come a little closer. He imagined a decayed arm reaching out of the ground to strangle him.

A strong wind blew through the forest clearing, sending a shower of leaves down on top of him. From out of the trembling bushes, a snake slithered under the dead leaves and across the boy's path. Trying to control his bowel movements, the boy broke in to a run.

Shoulder pads and a helmet bounced up and down in time to his canter. He had cut through this cemetery several times before, but it now seemed longer than he'd ever remembered. He ran harder, feeling the world moving in slow motion beneath his feet.

The atmosphere became darker as a cloud moved into an eclipse between the moon and the Earth, only the gossamer yellow edges of the corona lighting the ground.

A newly fallen tree branch laid in the dirt partially covered by Spanish moss. The boy stumbled over it in the darkness, landing face down in the mud.

Lifting his head, he stared at the gaping six foot deep hole in front of him. It had the resemblance of a freshly dug grave. At the bottom was an open bag of lime, probably there to make the bodies decay faster.

The moon came out of hiding and illuminated the cemetery once again. Picking the leaves off his jersey, the boy stood up. He looked around and saw no decaying arms reaching out for him, no corpses chasing him, and no ghosts emerging from the clouds in the sky.

There was nothing at all scary about the situation. The boy wondered what could have inspired such unfounded fear. "Just my imagination," he answered himself, turning around to leave.

The mud gave way beneath his feet, sending him plummeting to the bottom of the open grave. He grasped desperately for the walls of dirt. The earth crumbled between his fingers. His cleats could find no hold in the soft mud. In one final attempt to escape the pit, he dug his finger nails into the dirt and pulled his face to the surface of the hole.

He peered over the edge of the grave and found himself facing the newly carved headstone. His heart trembling, the boy examined the granite marker only to find it bearing a name very familiar to him. It read, "Here lies the Savannah State Tigers. Welcome to UCF Homecoming 1991."

Schedule of Events

Thursday, Oct. 31

Knight Fest — Trick-or-treating will be held in the Student Center Complex from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Each participating UCF organization will decorate one door of the Student Center with the theme "Tales From the Knightside." Afterwards, they will give out candy to the children of the community. This provides a safe environment for the children to do their trick-or-treating Halloween night.

Friday, Nov. 1

Greek Park Open House — Take a walk down Greek Row and see the inside of your favorite fraternity or sorority house. Greeks will give tours and serve refreshments to anyone interested. The open house lasts from 4 until 6 p.m.

Knight Parade — The homecoming parade can be viewed from the front of the Administration Building as it moves along Gemini Boulevard. Each float will reflect that organization's interpretation of the theme "Tales From the Knightside." The parade begins at 7 p.m.

Homecoming Concert — The concert, featuring comedian Jay Leno, will be at 9 p.m. in the UCF Arena. Tickets are $7 for students, $10 for faculty and alumni and $15 for guests. A shuttle bus will be going from the parade to the Arena.

Saturday, Nov. 2

Pegathon 5K Race — Lake Claire will be the sight of this 5K run. There is an entrance fee of $10 for all those who sign up the morning of the race. That price also includes a T-shirt and eligibility for door prizes. Runners take off at 9 a.m.

Tailgate Party — This Alumni sponsored event kicks off at 4 p.m. on Tinker Field. The cost is $5, which pays for the barbecue.

Homecoming Game — Come out and support our team as we take on the Savannah State Tigers at the Citrus Bowl. The game begins at 7 p.m.

Comedian Jay is on his way— Arena ticket sales still slow

by Marjie Levy and Jennifer Schutte
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

With the homecoming concert a day away, many tickets remain unsold. A great number of seats are still available for the Jay Leno performance at 9 p.m. in the Arena Friday night.

"We did project the tickets being sold out."

- Danielle Czjakowski concert director

The ticket sales and admission to the Jay Leno concert are being done according to level. The second level of seating went on sale Tuesday.

"Right now we have almost all the first level seating sold," said Danielle Czjakowski, Campus Activities Board concert director.

CAB expects the ticket sales to go like last year's Taylor Dayne concert. The last of those tickets were handed out on the morning of the concert. To duplicate such results, students will have to purchase all second level tickets today and tomorrow.

"We didn't have a specific amount, but we did project the tickets being sold out," Czjakowski said.

Tickets cost $7 for students, $10 for faculty and alumni and $15 for guests and can be bought at the KIOSK.

Many tickets are still available for the Jay Leno homecoming concert on Nov. 1.

HOMECOMING 1991

Jodi Gunder, Christina Santacroce and Jeff DeStefano vote for king and queen this week. The final results will be announced at the homecoming game Nov. 2.

Who will reign?

Knights will crown king, queen

by Kendra Panton
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

UCF's newest monarchs will be crowned Saturday night at the football game.

As the week of homecoming activities continues, so does the voting for the 1991 King and Queen.

The preliminary voting last week narrowed the 45 candidates down to 10, five women and five men.

The women finalists are Erin Klapper (Delta Gamma), Jennifer Latran (Pi Beta Phi), Kelly McAuliffe (Lambda Chi Alpha), Kendra Stewart (Sigma Phi Epsilon), Marci Villuneuva (Delta Delta Delta).

The men finalists are Rick Bollinger (Orientation Team), Lee

Lipton (Alpha Delta Pi), Ron Meaux (Lambda Chi Alpha), David Overstreet (Pi Beta Phi), Mark Sutton (Sigma Phi Epsilon).

The final voting is being held this week. Students can vote at the Library or the SOL from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday. The Library location will additionally be open from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. today.

Strike up the band for Homecoming '91

by Jennifer Schutte
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

"It's going to be the best parade in the world!" proclaimed CAB's homecoming parade director, Mike Johnson.

The Army ROTC will march through a 16-foot archway, leading the way for the other participants in the 1991 Homecoming parade.

More than 30 floats and spirit cars all decorated to the Homecoming theme of "Tales From the Knightside" will parade through the campus Friday.

Following the ROTC will be the community grand marshal, Republican Sen. Richard Crotty, District 14, and campus co-grand marshals Carrie Johnston and Mildred Kennedy.

Johnston is retired from the position of administrative assistant to the vice president of student affairs.

Kennedy is retired as the assistant to the president of UCF.

"There are 40 years of service between the two of them," said Johnson.

The grand marshals will be followed by the alumni, Gene McDowell, the football players, the UCF Marching Knights, Student Government and those Homecoming king and queen candidates who do not have their own floats.

The other candidates will be in vehicles following behind the float of their respective organizations.

The parade viewing area will be along Gemini Boulevard. The parade will go past Polk Hall, the front of the Administration Building and the parking lots next to the Visitor Information Center.

The parade begins at 7 p.m.

Afterwards, a shuttle service will be provided from the parade to the Arena for the 9 p.m. Jay Leno concert.

Greek Park swings doors open

Fraternities, sororities invite alumni to come visit

by Jennifer Schutte
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The Greeks are celebrating Homecoming week with their own personal touch this year.

They will join in the homecoming festivities by sponsoring a Greek Park Open House on Nov. 1, lasting from 4 until 6 p.m.

All eight sororities and fraternities in Greek Park will show their homecoming spirit by giving tours of their houses and serving refreshments afterward.

The houses will be decorated with banners made by the Greeks.

"The whole purpose is so people can see what's going on.

We want to get faculty, staff and students out to the Greek Park area," said Greg Mason, director of Greek affairs.

"We're looking forward to everyone being there."

"This is especially for the Greek Alumni, so they can come out and see how their old houses have changed.

We want them to come back and meet old friends in Greek Park," said Gert Garman, coordinator of the event and a Delta Gamma alumna.

After the tours, the Greek alumni will travel together to the parade viewing site.

"This is a homecoming tradition that has been going on for years and years and years at other universities, and we want to start the tradition here," Garman said.

The Sigma Chi fraternity brothers construct their float entry for Friday's 7 p.m. parade that will go in front of the Administration Building.

Fraternity pledges caught swiping lumber to build float

by Sandra Pedicini
STAFF REPORTER

UCF students have been caught steeling lumber twice in the past week — in one case the students told police they took lumber to build a fraternity homecoming float.

In the first incident, six UCF students were caught taking wood from a construction site at 2:40 a.m. Sunday.

A UCF student who lives across the street saw someone loading what he believed to be lumber into the rear of a truck and called 911.

A sheriff's deputy later spotted a jeep full of lumber travelling northbound on Rouse Road. The men told police they were Sigma Alpha Epsilon pledges and gave written statements in which they admitted stealing the lumber to impress their soon-to-be fraternity brothers.

The police had the men take the lumber back to the scene and unload it, the report said.

The students were Robert P. Long, 19, Michael T. Kane, 23, Patrick J. Fisher, 21, John L. Centrella, 18, Thomas J. Scott, 20, and John P. Melnis, 18.

Greek Affairs Coordinator Greg Mason said that "depending on the circumstances," the students could possibly have to face their fraternity standards board, the Inter-Fraternity Council judicial board or the campus judicial board for their actions.

None of the students were arrested.

In a similar episode, an Orange County Sheriff's deputy found two UCF students stealing lumber from a construction site Monday shortly after midnight.

Kevin Staten, 19, and Michael Allen, 20, had already loaded 12 boards when a deputy saw Staten's pickup truck parked in front of 4820 Lake Sharp Drive, Lot 716, a residence under construction. The deputy saw lumber sticking out of the truck bed.

The deputy then saw Staten and Allen leave the residence and walk toward the truck.

According to the police report, the men told the deputy that someone had told them they could take scrap wood on the ground.

However, the police report noted, they had 12 foot sections of 2 inch by 8 inch boards that were worth about $12 apiece and no scrap pieces. They also could not identify the person who they said gave them permission.

Both men said they were busy at meetings during the day and they only had time to get the wood at midnight.

The men said they were taking the wood to build a loft for their room at the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house.

Orange County Sheriff's Office community police officer Deputy Steve Buchanan warned that from now on the sheriff's office plans to treat students more severely when they are caught stealing from construction sites.

"We are requesting from here on out if they are caught that they are prosecuted," he said. "We don't have time to deal with this type of ridiculous nonsense. We are talking about a felony."

Budget ax swings again at UCF; social work may be sliced next

by Michelle A. Woodruff
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

A masters program in social work may become the next victim of budget cuts at UCF.

The department of social work submitted a proposal to the Board of Regents in September for approval of a Master of Social Work degree program.

Money for the program was available until the recent budget cuts, according to Kenneth J. Kazmerski, chairman of the social work department. Now the department will have to look to the community to pay the initial costs of the program, he said.

Start up costs for the program will total $270,896. During the second year, the program will become self-supporting, Kazmerski said.

The department is asking for donations from community social agencies, corporations, students, alumni, faculty, staff and the public at large.

In addition to seeking donations, the social work department is looking for other ways to raise money. The department has contacted 10 grant foundations and is waiting for replies. The College of Health and Public Affairs helped by holding a phone-a-thon on Oct. 7 that raised $700 for the program, Kazmerski said.

If the money is raised and the degree is approved, the department will begin accepting applications in January for the fall of 1992.

"There are over 300 people on the waiting list, and we can only admit 25," Kazmerski said. Applicants will need a minimum 3.0 GPA or a score of 1,000 on the GRE, he added.

According to Kazmerski, a shortage of social workers exists locally. "Less than one-half of the 385,000 jobs classified as social work jobs by the Bureau of Labor Statistics are occupied by professionally educated social workers," he said.

Only 3 percent of the social workers at HRS are actually credentialed, Kazmerski added.

HRS is very supportive of the program, said Marlene Richmond, an HRS consultant.

According to Richmond, past applicants, no matter what their degree, were required to have experience working with families before being hired. As an incentive for students to major in social work, HRS will now waive the experience require-

Plans to add 4th floor to Union halt construction

by Jena Schillings
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The bulldozers have halted because of a glitch in the plans for the Student Union.

The original plan of three floors for the Student Union would have only allowed use for 25,000 students, but a fourth floor will be added to accommodate for more student growth.

Beginning phases of work on the Student Union, located adjacent to the Library, began in August.

However, there has been a slight delay in the building because a fourth floor has now come into the picture. Dr. John Bolte, vice president of Administration and Finance, said, "We had to delay the architect so that they could re-design due to the addition of the fourth floor. That way it will be ready for a future date."

He added, "The completion of the fourth floor will be in five years or by the year 2000."

In order to add the fourth floor, they must wait for the Capital Improvement Trust Funds to build up. These CIT funds come directly from student fees.

Director of Facilities Planning Jerry Osterhaus said, "We are on hold at the Board of Regents for approval of the new contract in order to proceed with actual construction."

"We want to break ground as soon as possible," he added.

The architects who are working on the Student Union are from The Scott Companies. Architect Dave Thomas said, "We have approval for phases one and two, and we are waiting for approval on phase three."

Phase three also involves a 12,000 square foot banquet room, a senate chamber and many multi-purpose rooms.

"Construction has not yet begun, but the site work should be finished by the end of October," Thomas said.

Wheels set in motion for more housing

On-campus student apartments may be ready by fall 1993

by Marjoto Levy
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

For two years a proposal has been in the works at UCF for a new student housing facility on campus.

The new facility was suggested by former UCF President Steven Altman. "When Altman first came to UCF, his goals were to get more housing on campus," said Christi Hartzler, associate director of Housing and Residence Life. "So, he formed a housing committee."

It was this committee that came up with the proposal and, according to Hartzler, reality is about to set forth.

Right now, UCF has very limited on-campus housing. The school rooms about 900 students, while housing need is estimated to be about 2,000 students.

This new complex will satisfy many small factors, according to Hartzler. For example, some students will feel more accommodated by residing on campus in a place that will be open year round, instead of closing down during the breaks like most dorms do now. The complex will also help solve the lack of housing problem by making new rooms for about 702 students.

The new facility will be like apartments, consisting of four bedrooms, two bathrooms, a kitchen and a living room. The proposed yearly saving for a student living in the complex as opposed to an apartment will be about $1,000.

The new buildings will cost about $17 million. This money will not be collected from state funds or taxes, but instead from bonds that will be sold through the state.

The Board of Regents will vote on the passing of these bonds on Nov. 1. If these bonds are approved, the complex could be finished by the fall of 1993.

Bikes, decals favorite targets of thieves

by Sandra Pedicini
STAFF REPORTER

A Great Escapes employee found the back tire missing from his bicycle Oct. 21.

Mark Frankenfield, 19, had parked his bike between the coolers located behind Great Escapes at 11:25 a.m. He parked the bicycle there because he was late for work, the police report said. Around noon his manager, Ronald Tolf, came in the back door and said someone had just taken the back tire.

Tolf, 27, had parked behind Great Escapes when he spotted a red-rusty Corvette pull up. Tolf told police he saw a white male exit the vehicle and walk toward the back door of Great Escapes. But because of his angle of view, Tolf said, he lost sight of the man after he passed the first cooler. As Tolf continued toward Great Escapes, he noticed that the door to the first cooler was wide open. Then he saw the man exit from between the coolers with a bicycle tire in his hand. Tolf told police he asked the man, "Is that your tire?" The man said, "Yes."

In other police news:

■ A UCF student was arrested on campus and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

A police officer found Wesley Day, 25, 661 Remington Oak Drive, Lake Mary, in the driver's seat of his car parked on Gemini Boulevard. According to the police report, Day had a plastic cup containing a liquid that smelled like alcohol in the car. The officer knocked on the window and, after about three minutes, managed to wake him, the report said. The officer also noted that the car keys were still in the ignition.

After giving Day four sobriety tests, the officer arrested him. The report said that a breathalyzer test showed Day to have a blood alcohol level between .136 and .130.

Day told police he had been drinking beer and mixed drinks at Boomers and the Frat House.

■ UCF student Donna Elliott found her parking decal missing late last month after she received a ticket for parking without a decal. She lost the appeal of her ticket because she filed a police report on Oct. 23, after she appealed the ticket.

Parking services executive assistant Ina Carpenter warns students who did not realize a decal was stolen from their car and received a ticket for parking without it that they should file a police report immediately.

"If someone waits for a month and a half and then says their decal was stolen, then we have no time frame to work with," she said.

■ Someone tried to steal a bicycle belonging to UCF student and Wild Pizza employee Natalie Cerniglia Oct. 24.

Cerniglia told police that she parked her bike at the rear of the Wild Pizza at about 7 p.m. and started her shift in the kitchen. She discovered the bicycle missing at about 8:30 p.m. Her co-worker, UCF student Amy Simkaltis, 20, stepped out the rear door of the Wild Pizza and saw a man riding off with Cerniglia's bike. When Simkaltis called out, the man got off the bike and started running away from her toward the Commons area.

■ Another bicycle was stolen from a UCF bicycle rack Oct. 21.

UCF student Jessz Ray Hooker, 18, told the police he had put his bicycle in the bike rack and locked it with a chain at 10:30 p.m. When he returned at 11:10 p.m., he found it was gone. The chain had apparently been cut, the police report said.

■ A woman's purse and wallet containing $140 was found missing Oct. 22.

Debra Leonard, 23, told police that at 8:15 a.m. she had stopped at an ATM machine to withdraw $140. She then went to class and set her bookbag, containing her purse, in front of her under her desk. She left her desk twice during class, once to sharpen her pencil and again to turn in her test papers. After class she found the purse and wallet missing.

SG gives $345 to engineering society for induction

by Rebecca Falcon
STAFF REPORTER

Induction will bring national recognition to UCF

UCF's Chi Eta chapter of the Civil Engineering Honor Society set a precedent by earning induction privileges into the National Chi Epsilon chapter.

Chi Eta member Sen. Edith Patton presented a bill to Student Government during Sunday's meeting that requested $345 from the Senate Working Fund for induction and ceremonial fees. The bill was passed by a vote of 30-3.

In opposition of the bill, Sen. Gary Marlar said, "I don't think we should be paying for ceremonial fees."

Marlar compared Chi Eta's induction ceremony to that of a Greek fraternity or sorority because both organizations use robes and blindfolds.

He added that Greek members are responsible for their national induction fees and that Chi Eta members should share the same responsibility.

Patton defended Chi Eta, saying that fraternities are social organizations whereas Chi Epsilon is a service organization. Also defending Chi Eta were officers, Linda Danserean, secretary, and Kathy Dobbins, marshal.

Dobbins said that fraternities and sororities are selective in choosing their members. "Chi Eta is not selective," Dobbins said.

Dobbins and Danserean argued that Chi Eta's induction into a national chapter would bring national recognition to UCF. However, Sen. Robert Park, an engineering student, opposed the bill saying, "I think it's a bad spending policy."

"The total cost is $1,645 and we're only asking for $345," Danserean said.

Marlar and Park both said they felt UCF would not receive national recognition from Chi Eta. Addressing the senators, Marlar asked; "I've never heard of Chi Eta. Have you?"

In rebuttal, one senator reminded Marlar that SG had recently passed a bill allocating $1,000 to flag football. "How much national recognition will UCF receive from flag football?" he said.

Joining the senator in his pro debate, SG Pro Temp, Don Langley urged the senators to pass the bill. "This is great. Engineering will be recognized nationally," Langley said.

All students are encouraged to attend the SG meetings at 3 p.m. every Sunday. Student government representatives are there to hear students' complaints.

We're talking about condoms.

And we're talking about AIDS.

If you're not sharing needles with infected drug users, there's one other way you can get AIDS, and that's sex.

Because when passed into the bloodstream by semen, anybody is vulnerable to the virus.

There are no vaccines against AIDS. There are no cures for it.

And if you get, you'll likely die.

So if you choose to have sex, be sure to carry condoms and tell your partner to use them.

Let's face it if a woman doesn't look out for herself, how can she be sure anyone else will?

AIDS

And if he says no, so can you.

If you think you can't get it you're dead wrong.

Tongue-tied or how to be a Politically Correct personality

To be politically correct or not to be politically correct, that is the '90s question. Most politicians, lawyers and general people involved in the public eye seem to be quite overwrought as to whether their actions or those represented are being politically correct.

What exactly does POLITICALLY CORRECT mean?

Politically correct refers to whether an action (whether spoken, acted out or just thought of) is offensive to ANY sect in society. This can be rather difficult for politicians to meet EVERY group's needs and as a result, the American public is witness to perhaps the beginning of the failure of the American government.

Some would say that this is a bit stringent, but consider the ramifications of what has turned into an epidemic.

Lawyers have begun to use this in court. Hate crimes are given greater emphasis than the crimes that are the same heinous offense because of what someone calls a crime against a certain group. It is just as despicable to mutilate a body in the name of their race as to do the crime in an act of blind aggression. Mutilation is mutilation, there can be no second.

Public figures, such as talk show hosts and actors have suddenly taken up issues which they claim to have been concerned with from the beginning, it is just now that they chose to act. If every one is to be politically correct, then no one will ever have an opinion. To restrict our entertainers is not only boring, but also very tedious to watch. An example of this ludicrous attitude is Jane Fonda and her recent speaking out on the Braves name.

Politicians should not try to appeal to every minority group. The majority voted our representatives and, as a result, one should not restrict them to covering every aspect. This causes wishy-washy politics as well as no real decisions ever being made.

No one ever suggested that lobbying should stop, but rather the term and actions of being politically correct are too restrictive. The public should make an active effort to help our politicians overcome this shortcoming.

There is no way to end bigotry other than to educate the masses. For politicians to please everyone, they hurt everyone. To punish people for words, which may be considered uncouth as well as politically not correct, then everyone should be locked up. For people to walk a tight rope with every group proves nothing (ie. the Native Americans vs. the Braves).

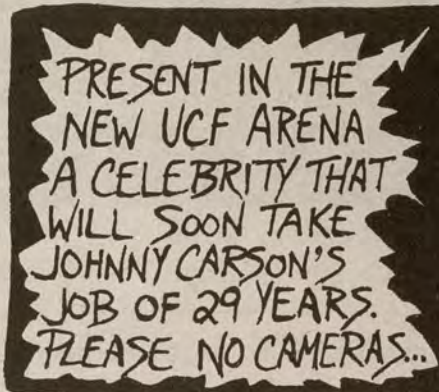

The world is full of hate and no one has the market on it, so let's not act as though we can eradicate human failing. But rather let us keep trying to keep perspective when trying, convicting and hanging a man for words.

Show school spirit, go to Homecoming!

The Central Florida Future would like to encourage students to attend the Homecoming game against Savannah State. The more students that attend the game, the more school spirit they will generate. So take the day off, get into your UCF duds and come join the party at the Citrus Bowl.

We'll see you at the game!

UCF Welcomes JAY LENO...

■ MISINFORMATION

Editor:

As an advisor to the 1991 Homecoming Committee, I think it would be appropriate to respond to your Oct. 8 editorial concerning this year's Homecoming Concert.

I knew we would be receiving some criticism concerning the concert, and it was one of the discussion items during the Activity and Service Fee Committee meetings last spring. The decision was made to provide the best entertainment at the best possible price. Instead of spending all of our money at one time, we thought the students would appreciate having more quality entertainment throughout the year, even if it meant charging a minimal admission fee. I know as the year progresses and other shows are produced, you and student body will agree we made the correct decision.

I think you should be applauding the efforts of hundreds of students involved with CAB instead of undermining their work.

Misinformation:

1. Homecoming is not solely a student event. This year we have a show that has wide appeal and will be successful both through attendance and financially. In fact, it is the additional revenue from these other non-students which will be helping to fund other productions held in the UCF Arena and in the Student Center.
2. The 1986 and 1987 concerts were not produced by CAB or SG. They were privately produced and lost huge amounts of money.
3. It is not unusual for students to pay for Homecoming concerts. UCF students paid for the Orleans concert, David Brenner concert, Robert Klein concert, Busboys concert and the Jerry Seinfeld Concerts. There have actually been more concerts that the students have had to pay for than not.

4. There is no reduction in Homecoming events. Actually there are more events, including the Scavenger Hunt, Homecoming Hoopla and Thursday community service project.

5. Except for the placement of the scoreboard, the UCF Arena is finished and ready for Homecoming.

It is naive to think we will ever be able to accommodate the needs, wants and schedules of every student. It is also naive, and selfish, to think you must get something right now for the fees you pay now. That's not the way it is. If it was, we would not be able to get the facilities we have or are getting like the Activities Center (Wild Pizza), Arena and Student Union. These were and are being paid by former students, current students and future students. I think our students know this and appreciate the hard work the people they entrusted with this responsibility have done for them. There is no such thing as a free ride.

Director, UCF Arena

■ LIFE IS LIFE

Editor:

In response to the letter to the editor, written by Jean Louis which appeared in the Oct. 17 issue of the Future:

I would like to point out that Louis' reasoning has some very fundamental flaws. First, Louis has assumed that the majority of people are against abortion are identified with the radical, militant movements that employ illegal activities, and harassment to further their cause. This is not the case.

The vast majority of anti-abortionists do not approve of the use of violence and illegal activities in the name of a good cause. In fact, major organized anti-abortion groups, such as Right to Life, do not claim any association with, or give support to radical splinter groups that see fit to take the law into their own hands. Unfortunately activities such as counseling and education are not considered newsworthy by the media.

Secondly, Louis goes on and on about "women's rights" and "degradation." When pro-abortionists talk about rights under the Constitution, they are forgetting that those rights do not include harming another person. A baby in the womb is just as ALIVE as a baby that has passed through the birth canal, and abortion destroys that life. Louis speaks of the potential emotional trauma of women who would have to follow through with their pregnancies, but what of the trauma of women who would have to follow through with their pregnancies, but what about the impact of wholesale destruction of human life?

As for the very few women who become pregnant by rape, I sympathize with them wholeheartedly, but it is unthinkable to justify the millions of abortions performed each and every year, on the grounds that it will cause trauma to a few women. Can the child, which is an innocent result of a heinous crime committed against the woman, be blamed and destroyed?

The underlying causes behind abortion are ignorance, irresponsibility, greed, and insensitivity, and it is the time for us to consider what we are going to reap from this bloody harvest.

Confession ruins pot-smoking writer's political future

Bill Cushing

WHAT'S NEXT?

I smoke dope. Or rather, I used to, but the market being what it is, I have since given that up.

At any rate, I confess to having been an active grass-smoker for years.

There — I have completely destroyed my political future, or any hopes of attaining a seat on the Supreme Court.

Which brings me to my point: Self-confession seems to have become a politically vogue thing for today's aspiring political candidates or appointees. I think it all started when Jimmy Carter admitted to Playboy magazine that he had "lusted in his heart."

Now it seems that every time someone comes up for a governmental office or post, there is this sudden cleansing of the soul from past sins. Now, every baby-boomer at the age of house and insurance payments is finding himself (or herself) in a position where confession becomes necessary.

And every one of those admitting to marijuana use in their foolish past has maintained that it was only once or twice, but no more. This is a posture that is increasingly popular, not only on television panel hearings but on the highways and byways and elevators of everyday life.

In fact, most of what is heard these days is even purer than the stance of casual use. More and more people in their 30s and 40s insist that, while they saw others smoking in their youth, they themselves never ever got involved in the activity.

It is especially curious in light of these facts: according to the public relations office of the DEA, federal officers confiscated and destroyed about 2.5 million plants in 1982. That number went up to 3.3 million in 1983, then zoomed exponentially out of sight every year thereafter (13 million in 1984, 39 in '85 and a whopping 130 mill in 1986).

Let us, for the sake of argument, say the DEA nailed 2.5 million plants annually. These figures do not include activity taking place at the city, state or other legal levels that exist.

Now, let's say that one plant will yield — oh — a half pound of grass.

This means that since, by its own admission, the DEA is only able to get to 10 to 20 percent of the marijuana sold, about 10 million plants are escaping detection each year, or five million pounds.

Going by these loosely figured numbers, that means that between the years 1969 and 1975, those years when all these new puritans were witnessing (but not partaking) in marijuana use, someone, somewhere somehow indulged in about 25 million pounds of weed.

Where did all this grass go? I mean, I was active and all but I know I didn't blow all that much. Yet according to everyone else even slightly related to that time period, they NEVER had more than a joint or two.

Is it still out there somewhere? And can it still be purchased at 1970 prices?

Please let me know; I'd be very interested in locating all this mysteriously vanished herb.

collegiate career at Utah State and the the University of Kentucky where she had established herself as an All-American.

Kirby grew up in Brooklyn, Massachusetts, and began playing volleyball as a freshman in high school along with basketball and softball. For Kirby, athletics ran in the family.

"My brothers played college basketball at small colleges," Kirby said. "My little sister was more of a cheerleader type, though."

After leaving college, Kirby's hope was to represent the United States in the Olympics but personality conflicts with the U.S. Olympic coach led her to go professional instead.

"What I wanted was to go to the Olympics," Kirby said. "I'd say the decision to go pro was an extremely difficult one."

Kirby and Smith played together for the second time with the New York Liberties in the first professional women's volleyball league in the United States. The league lasted from 1987-1989.

From there, Smith and Kirby continued to stick together while playing the sport they love.

"The next year, we were the only two Americans to play in the Brazilian tour," Smith said. "From there, both of us went to professional beach volleyball. She played beach volleyball the year before but after that was my first year. Karolyn had an immediate impact on the sport, although her first year on the beach tour was like mine. The game is a lot different."

The combination of Kirby and her teammate Angela Rock has led to a number one ranking on the tour, which runs from April through August. The total purse for the league was $800,000 and will rise to up to $1 million this year.

From the perspective of a longtime friend, Smith believes that Kirby's greatest assets as a player are inseparable from her strengths as a person.

"As a player, she's 6 foot and not a klutz," Smith said. "She can jump 40 inches, so she's very explosive. God did not gift me as he did Karolyn, but she encourages me. There's a certainty of her life skills. She doesn't have to prove herself to you."

"The next step for all of us is trying to get beach volleyball as an event in the Olympics and other than that the Pro Tour."

Knights set to halt skid by stomping Savannah State

Homecoming game gives football team chance to rebound

by Dave Meadows
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The UCF Knights will return to the friendly confines of the Florida Citrus Bowl this weekend looking to end one streak while extending another.

Coach Gene McDowell and company will be trying to snap a two-game losing skid by winning their fifth consecutive Homecoming contest.

While most collegiate football programs traditionally schedule a weak team in order to guarantee a Homecoming win, the Knights will have their work cut out for them against a pesky squad from Savannah State College.

"It's going to be a good, tough game," McDowell said in practice earlier this week. "Savannah State is big on both sides of the ball, both offense and defense, and we're going to have to play well in order to beat them."

The Knights played well in last weekend's loss to Georgia Southern, but came out on the short end of a 20-6 score.

"I'm relieved that we played as well as we did," McDowell said, "but I'm disappointed that we lost."

"I'm not upset with our players at all; they played as hard as they could and there wasn't any loafing going on out there. I'm not angry about it, just disappointed."

Both teams will be looking to rebound from losses from last weekend; SSC is coming off a tough 42-34 defeat by Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference rival Morehouse.

"I just hope that we can bounce back this week," said Tigers head coach Bill Davis. "I know UCF is coming off a tough loss to Georgia Southern, they want to bounce back, and they're playing with a lot of pride."

The Knights, as usual, will rely on the legs of Willie English to move the football.

The junior running back crossed the 1,000 yard plateau last week with a 120 yard effort against GSU; he needs only 239 more yards to match former Knight Mark Giaccone's single-season record of 1,269 yards set in 1990.

"He's the best back we've faced all year," Davis said. "He's capable of scoring from anywhere on the field. We're gonna have to gang tackle him in order to stop him."

"Watching him for us is kinda like that Roloids commercial where the baseball catcher is watching films of Rickey Henderson."

Davis apparently believes that the best defense sometimes is a good offense.

"We'd like to try and control the ball on offense and keep him [English] off the field," Davis said. "Our offensive scheme will be just to try and move the football and maintain possession."

UCF Homecoming Record:

Four wins, five losses.

Davis will rely heavily on quarterback Greg Leverett to successfully operate his multiple-option attack and keep the Knights' offense off the field.

Leverett has completed 37 of 91 pass attempts this season for 536 yards, six touchdowns and four interceptions.

He has also gained 446 yards rushing on 84 carries and scored seven TD's on the ground, leading SCC to a 5-3 record.

"He's an outstanding quarterback," McDowell said. "He's tall, he's fast, he's got a good arm and he's a good runner."

The Knights and the Tigers have shared only two common opponents this season.

UCF and SCC defeated Bethune-Cookman 32-6 and 35-20, respectively; the Tigers also fell to Georgia Southern, 29-20.

With four losses, the Knights have been effectively erased from the NCAA Division I-AA playoff picture, but still have a lot of pride left to play for.

"The morale of the team is good," McDowell said. "We've still got three tough games left to play; we're just gonna take 'em one at a time and we want to win this one."

The game will mark the Knight's fifth meeting with the Tigers with UCF winning the last four meetings after suffering a 44-0 blowout to the Tigers in 1980.

UCF is averaging 370 yards a game with 200 yards passing and 170 yards on the ground. (Jim Ferguson/FUTURE)

Volleyball team puts fear in Stetson, FAMU

by Jenny Duncanson
STAFF REPORTER

October is a scary month, and the UCF Lady Knights volleyball team has been striking fear in the hearts of its opponents.

On Oct. 24, UCF traveled to DeLand to scare the Stetson Lady Hatters into losing. UCF won in three straight games, 15-8, 15-7 and 15-10.

The Lady Knights then returned to O-town on Saturday to bury Florida A & M University. Again, they accomplished the task in three straight games.

UCF has haunted the Lady Hatters all season. The teams have played two individual matches and met in two invitationals. Every meeting between the two teams has resulted in a victory for the Lady Knights. Stetson was on their home court and looking for Knight blood, but UCF would not oblige.

UCF had 34 kills for the evening and nine serve aces. Lisa Peterson led the team with kills and Kathy Fill accounted for four of the serve aces.

The Florida A & M Rattlers came to UCF for some "treating," but the Lady Knights had "tricks" up their sleeves and sent the Lady Rattlers to the locker room after three quick games. UCF only allowed Florida A & M to score 10 points in the match.

This time UCF made 38 kills as a team and eight serve aces. Shannon Pack, Lisa Peterson and Linda Santiago teamed up to lead the team offensively.

The team has two more games and one more mini-series before post season play begins.

The mini-series will be played at the University of New Orleans. UCF will play New Orleans, Arkansas State University and Louisiana Tech.

Volleyball pro practices with Lady Knights

by Jamie Johnson
SPORTS EDITOR

The nation's premiere professional beach volleyball player, Karolyn Kirby, showed up at the Lady Knights' volleyball practice Tuesday afternoon and made her 6-foot presence known.

The 1983 graduate of the University of Kentucky and long-time friend of first year UCF volleyball coach Laura Smith practiced with the UCF team and showed the young players a glimpse of excellence both on the court and off.

"Her presence in our gym is definitely going to make a big difference in the play of our girls," Smith said. "She's the most popular player on the tour. Karolyn has a genuine sincerity about her that's a huge attribute not only as a player but as a person."

Smith first met Kirby eight years ago when the two played together for the first time with the United States Volleyball Association and went to nationals. Kirby had just completed a successful

by Anthony Torres

Halloween is a white American thing I don't understand. In Spain they don't celebrate Halloween. Nor in France or Morocco or Mexico. Halloween is a white man's dentist's idea to corrupt our people's strong defense against tooth decay. Don't sell out! This pagan satanic night of devil praising is up there with Mother's Day, a holiday created by Burford P. Hallmark to sell more of his product. So here's a list of things I won't be doing to support the fascist oppression of those with high moral fibre.

1. Dressing up like a woman. No need to do something for one night I can do 364 times in a year.
2. Bobbing for Apples. The great white fascist oppressor, Johnny Appleseed, raped the Navajo land with his apple orchards. Don't sell yourself out by pursuing the icon of America's injustices. We will be wet-backs no longer.
3. Carving Pumpkins. Carving a happy face in an orange pumpkin was what our society wanted to do to the yellow man in Vietnam. Don't promote the empty, hollow pursuits of post-war sadists.

4. Trick or treating. Why must our children degrade themselves, going door to door make believing they are something they aren't, trying to tell them this "trick or treat" panhandling humiliation is fun? Why don't we just give them some squeegees, send them to the nearest traffic light and have them scream "Need your car washed?" at every fool that has to stop.

5. Drinking. Drinking is the leading cause of intoxication in America. Would you consume chicken lard knowing that lard is the leading cause of colon cancer in Bolivia? Yeah, since everyone thinks they are immortal. So did the great white hope, Custard. Or the white separatist South that has been trying to rise again since the late 1860's. And what about that great white athlete, Lyle Alzado? Steroids at 40? Don't let the last name fool you: he was definitely a whitey. Oh, the stupidity of the colorless ones that teach our children, are president of our government and who destroyed the concept of equality and justice of minority authority.

If you are too weak to resist the need to be another person's puppet, try to cut the string of drinking. Drinking is a white man's ploy to keep Native American's on the reservation in poverty. And it worked! You are also more likely to give up control of your soul to the inebriation pharaoh looming over and controlling your every movement, gesture and sexual promiscuous act, only for you males and females to regret it in the next morning. That's not fun, even on Halloween.

Turn those boring tricks into spontaneous treats

by Anthony Torres

Want to do some really scary things that will impress your passed-out best friend's girlfriend? Be Spontaneous! On Halloween, spontaneity adds to the danger and excitement of potentially being abducted and molested by an unknown stranger dressed in a clown suit.

These hints are to be taken lightly. If you go off the deep end, your skin folks.

1. Listen to scary tapes. November Coming Fire by Samhain is pretty scary. Samhain is quite like Markie Mark and the Fresh Bunch. Except Samhain gives evil vibrations! FEEL IT, FEEL IT!!!

Anything by the Misfits is a good deal, too. Samhain's Initium is a great way to spook local kids. Truly disturbing lost-soul music when played in the dark.

2. Check out the "Making of Thriller." This is a spooky tape. Every thing you never wanted to know about Michael Jackson's life. If you play it backwards, you can see glimpses of Latoya reenacting her childhood molestation experiences with a Raggedy Andy doll. Life scaring stuff.

3. Go down to Orange Avenue and see who can pick out the "regulars" from those who are dressing up. Bonus points if you correctly identify the sex.

5. Four was dumb so here's five. Trick or treat. See how many apples you can eat before biting into a razor, needle or strychnine. Any neighborhood in Orlando is fair game and gives equal odds! So don't bother driving to the "bad" parts of Orlando to play, just stay in your own neighborhood.

GG Allin,

by Anthony Torres

Toknow G.G. Allin is to love him. Read any alternative press worth its Xerox in sensationalism and you'll find info on this beloved musician. He played in Tampa a few years back, and judging from the photographs, be glad you missed the show.

The adorable Allin was, in living color, biting chunks of skin off his knee, had semi-circle scars on both his shoulders (he had bitten himself there), was slurping diarrhea (somebody get this guy some Pepto-bismal!) and generally being a dirty, bloody mess. From the first person account, G.G. pulled out his hair at the end of the show, which is why he was prematurely balding at that time. From past interviews, Mr. Allin boasts every show ends with him either in prison or the hospital. Prison for indecency charges, in the hospital for blood poisoning. Feces are toxic, so if you roll in them with open wounds, some bad do-do is bound to happen.

So what does this guy have to do with Halloween? Well, now that pathos has been established, let's get to the good stuff. G.G. was supposed to kill himself Halloween '90 on stage somewhere in New York. Unfortunately, he was property of Michigan during this time.

In the spring of this year, G.G. was released and recorded Murder Junkies with Antiseen. This is one sex in prison." Or when he tells adoring fans to self pleasure themselves. Or when he pulls out a pair of silk panties from his back pocket, sniffs them and disappointedly exclaims "No stains." To go against politically correct sensibilities, the guy was likeable and charismatic. You know, like a hard-core JFK!

It will be pretty short lived. See, come this very Halloween, G.G. will kick off his good hardcore album. With lines like "Be a man, be a sissy, it's all in your way/ you'll be my baby boy if you disrespect me," how can one not think "core!"

For two weeks in August, G.G. was in Tampa visiting Mark Robinson to record a "hobo" album and rape Mark's pet dog Grover.

Now, let's not get all deadly serious about suicide. G.G. has a sense of humor, and in a strange way he really cares about the very fans he throws bodily excrement at. At least that was the impression set at the in store at Alternative Records. Prices on merchandise Marke and G.G. were selling were being slashed every 10 minutes. There's a need to laugh when G.G. says, "There's a lot to be said about

"FINAL BLOODY MUTI-LATION" tour in San Francisco. This will go on for one whole year across America at any place that will allow him to "express his art." Come the Halloween of '92, Mr. Allin has committed himself to "the greatest thrill of all:" Death. That's right, you thought Ozzy Osbourne had balls. G.G. has balls and a diseased schlong to match! He's gonna kill himself on stage, in living bloody color Halloween of next year!

Now, you might be thinking "that's stupid." Why would anyone want to do that?" Who really cares? Mark Robinson sums it all up: "The guy lives on the stage, so he wants to die on the stage."

& his mission

Sambora's solo project proves he is no stranger to success

■ Stranger In This Town
Artist: Richie Sambora
Producer: Neil Dorfsman & Richie Sambora
Label: Polygram

Richie Sambora's first solo project does have its highlights and might offer you a little more than just a spin off from Bon Jovi.

For those of you who missed the '80s, Sambora was and still is the lead guitarist for Bon Jovi. Sambora wrote, co-wrote and co-arranged most of Bon Jovi's song with Jon Bon Jovi and Desmond Child. After four albums and seven years, Jon Bon Jovi and the rest of the multi-platinum band decided to take a break in 1990. Jon released his self-titled solo project.

This year, Sambora attempts to break into the market by himself. Leaving the shadow of a band that has sold over 30 million albums world-wide is a BIG step. Sambora's Stranger In This Town sounds very much like any other Bon Jovi album with a mixture of steady drums, keyboards, occasional heavy guitar and a soulful echo of a voice. Sambora is a talented guitarist AND he can sing. However, he doesn't have the depth that Jon Bon Jovi does.

On the cover it says "Turn down the lights, light a candle..."

welcome." The first song, "Rest In Peace," has a spooky start, and is wickedly romantic, probably the best on the entire album. The third song, "Stranger In This Town," has definite Bon Jovi influence.

The infamous glam of Bon Jovi has evolved over the years. (Polygram Records)

Sambora did use a few of Desmond Child's songs as well as one song, "Rosie," that was co-written by Jon Bon Jovi in this effort. Sambora is still under the same management. Keyboardist David Bryan and drummer Tico Torres from Bon Jovi are also in his line-up. Basically you could say that this is a Bon Jovi album without Jon Bon Jovi.

The album is worth listening to if you're really into Bon Jovi. It has that same feel. The song "Father Time" has especially good lyrics.

Sambora's "Ballad of Youth" has already received plenty of radio play. Other single releases will quickly follow. The album should easily go platinum, but you've got to ask, "What about Bon Jovi?" The band hasn't officially broken up, but they have postponed any projects. Maybe it's a hiatus or, as Jon said in a recent interview, "I don't know where's Bon Jovi is right now."

—Josiah Baker

Circle

makes it very aggressive, quite like "Burning Too" by Fugazi. But only in energy, not in sound.

The next song is quite like a Jerry Lee Lewis inspired ditty not about his cousin's tit. Rockabilly to the bone, quite like the Stones at the start of their since exhumed careers. Unfortunately, I can't make much out of the lyrics. The mix on this record places the voice beneath the music, thus making the voice an instrument.

"Dust," song number three, is the ultimate love song, the singer's voice twisting like a macho Robert Smith of The Cure. It's a driving song about dying behind the wheel. I listened to this song two hours straight: it's that good, that fluid. "Cold wind blows where love once dwelled/there will be no wedding bells." Need I say more?

If I didn't, this review would be short and deceptive. "Odette," unfortunately, is too Dream Academy-ish. Nevertheless it is a beautiful song that drifts to Spanish instrumentation, sending a message that this band is centered on musical talent, as opposed to raw aggression.

"?" has a sweet melody, with the voice now moved to the front of the mix. This signals the fall-out of Circle C. Refreshing distortion washes clean this song at it's climax.

Alas, side two doth pass. Circle C is a worthy self-titled cassette. Maybe David Geffen Company might treat its consumers as customers and begin selling side one for half price of a full cassette. This band has promise. Don't write them off...

Kick back and 'Use Your Illusion'

■ Use Your Illusion I and II
Artist: Guns and Roses
Producer: Mike Clink & GnR
Label: Geffen

OK, finally a review on the awaited Use Your Illusion I and II.

After a string of rumored release dates, it's finally out. Actually, it was released about a month ago and has been sitting at the top slot on Billboard since its notorious release. Sound warehouse actually stayed open an extra hour just to sell it the minute the clock struck midnight. Yeah, everybody is Guns and Roses crazy.

Every article I have ever read on GnR has been about what a pack of barbarians they are, urinating here, rioting there, fighting here, more urinating over there. It's really getting old. I'm just here to talk about music. This paper is free so I don't have to worry about increasing sales with some headline like "Slash urinates on cheerleader at UCF football game."

I honestly could care less what they do with their lives. They can pump as many chemicals in their bodies as they want. Whatever they do, I don't care. But, something is happening with this band that makes them simply phenomenal.

That's right! You can't buy a better rock record out right now than Use Your Illusion I or II. Oh, and by the way, this isn't just a double record cut in half and sold separately. These are completely different records. If you ask me, and you are because you're reading this, the first is better. But it really depends on what mood you are in; Two is dirtier.

Use Your Illusion I is a prime example of GnR's capabilities as song writers and performers. One is very artsy and experimental. Guns and Roses used their imaginations rather than their musical influences in making this record. Songs like "Don't Cry," "The Garden," "November Rain" and "Coma" are journeys into the unknown, uncharted settlements in rock music.

Use Your Illusion I is completely original and full of surprises. With the addition of keyboardist Dizzy Reed and drummer Matt Sorom (ex-Cult), GnR's sound is vaster and more mature. Dizzy Reed adds a "Honky Tonk" style of piano playing to GnR's sound. Even on the hardest tracks, Dizzy bangs out a serious rock piano groove.

The CD never gets boring, each track is a separate entity in itself. It's definitely a rollercoaster ride through GnR's world. Axl Rose's lyrics are cold but personal. "I kinda like it in a coma and I don't think I wanna ever come back to this world again."

Use Your Illusion II is a lot like Appetite for Destruction. That's probably why so many people like Two (Use II entered the chart at number one while I took the number two slot). If you like parental advisory stickers, you'll love II. I wish I could quote some lyrics... Well, nah!

"Get in the Ring" is probably the greatest hate song on this disc. Axl attacks his enemies and mentions names, while Slash, Izzy, Dizzy, Duff and Matt attack a mean groove.

The music is nonstop rockin' all the way through. II is a shorter disc, 75 minutes compared to the 76 minutes on I, probably because it moves faster. Like I said, it depends on what mood you are in. I find myself listening to I a lot more, but occasionally I pop in II to hear "Get in the Ring."

Both discs are awesome, through and through. Don't be fooled, though. These discs won't turn any GnR haters into GnR likers. If you hate GnR, you've wasted your time reading this review, and you should go back to staring into the reflecting pond. If you love GnR you probably already have it. So, crank it up! And to those of you who are just current event fiends, it was worth the hype! GnR rocks!

'Frankie and Johnny' mirrors ups and downs of life

by Patrick Campbell

"Frankie and Johnny" is a movie that seems a lot like the way life can be.

It can be long, painful and just when you think you have nothing left, something can surprise you that makes all the lousy things you go through not that bad. This is not a typical love story with all the happiness, good times and sweet memories for all. This is a reluctant, enduring love story of a man who will do anything for the woman he loves, and a woman who can't decide what she wants because it is all happening too fast.

Al Pacino is Johnny, a guy who just finished 18 months in prison for forgery. He is now looking for a job and a way to make a new life in New York City. Johnny did a lot of reading and learned how to be a great chef in prison. Now he is using his culinary talents at The Apollo Cafe as the new short order cook. This is where he meets a waitress named Frankie (Michelle Pfeiffer) then falls in love with her and knows he must get her to fall in love with him.

Frankie is a loner who does not know what she wants out of life. She never finished high school. She stays at a job she knows she can't advance in, and the biggest decision she has made is to buy a VCR so she can watch movies every night. She wants nothing more than to be left alone.

The movie focuses on Johnny trying to get Frankie to go with him. Johnny eventually gets her consent and then the movie follows their ups and downs. The movie seems to drag in certain places because it follows their relationship closely on a daily basis. I wish it would just get on with it.

Johnny pretty much suffocates her with his constant pleading for her to go out with him and then his pleading for them to stay together forever. Dialogue is very important in this movie because there is nothing Johnny cannot explain or talk Frankie into. The constant fighting is how all the secrets they have been hiding deep inside themselves are resolved.

Pfeiffer does an impressive job as the depressed waitress who has given up on life. Her sense of despair and loneliness Pacino's performance as the man who will not stop until he gets what he wants is very convincing and somewhat annoying.

Escape Halloween's glamour, catch a suspenseful tale instead

by Alissa Barber

Are you sick of Halloween's cheap, grease painted, merchandised fright? Go to Theatre Downtown on Orange Avenue Friday or Saturday night at 11:30 p.m. and pay only $5 to see "The Love Talker," a suspenseful drama with a harrowing ending that will crack your composure like a hammer to your plastic Dracula mask.

A coming-of-age story twisted into a haunting tale of fear and madness, "The Love Talker" tells the story of two sisters, Bun and Gowdie, whose Southern farm lies on the edge of a forest.

When young Gowdie tires of her endless chores and wanders into the forest, the mischievous spirits she finds there turn her world around and finally spin it out of control.

Her sister Bun fights an epic battle with The Love Talker, a forest dweller with the sly watchfulness and savagery of an animal, to save Gowdie from the enchanting "tricks and glamor" of the spirits.

UCF student, you will truly be amazed at the intensity, the fear, the courage and the desire conjured up by "The Love Talker's" four actors. Theatre Downtown's small stage will become your whole world as you watch this drama unfold.

In one memorable scene from the play, Gowdie tries to make her sister understand the rapture and uncertainty of her moments with the Love Talker, the exciting feeling of being "dropped from one hand and caught up with the other hand".

Feel the same ecstasy by seeing "The Love Talker." It is one earthly experience worthy of the spirit.
